3. Teaching and Learning Activities (TLAs)

(TLAs designed to facilitate students' achievement of the CILOs.)

Notes: The seminar designed with a variety of “active” learning activities aims at engaging students in the self-discovery processes for Web-enhanced personal knowledge management skills, life-long learning strategies, professional career planning, and multi-cultural social interactions and networking.

TLA	Brief Description	CILO No.					Hours/week (if applicable)
		1	2	3	4	5
TLA1. Lecture	Explain the needs and concepts of career planning and management, personal knowledge management, and ways to engage in professional career development from the psychological, practical, and technological perspectives. Invited Guest Talks: Experienced professionals from the industry will be invited to share their wisdom of professional career development and application of Web-based tools with students. These talks are interactive in nature and offering students plenty of opportunities to raise questions.	✓	✓	✓	✓	✓	Seminar: 3 Hours/Week
TLA2. Computer Lab	Develop students' practical skills in using general Web tools to conduct personal knowledge management, and professional career planning and development. Demonstrations: Instructors demonstrate how to use general Web-based tools (e.g., LinkedIn, Google site, RSS feeds, social bookmarking, Twitter etc.) for personal knowledge management, multi-cultural social interactions and networking, and career planning. Hands-on exercises: Students follow the lab exercises to improve their practical skills in applying general Web-based tools to build their presence online and to conduct personal knowledge management, professional career planning, and multi-cultural social interactions and networking. ePortfolio: Students can engage in initial professional development (e.g., via LinkedIn) and develop an ePortfolio to document their achievements and future development plan.		✓	✓	✓	✓
TLA3. Tutorial	Students actively participate in various activities to enhance their concepts and practical skills of applying basic management concepts and Web technology to conduct life-long learning and professional career development. Self-assessment Questionnaires: Instructors use specific web-based questionnaires (e.g. MBTI, Holland Interests) to let individuals discover their own strengths, weaknesses, personal goals, and identify the opportunities to improve self-capabilities and engage in life-long learning. Personal life and career planning: Through these exercises, students can actively participate in developing their life-long learning strategies and professional career development plan with reference to personal	✓	✓	✓	✓	✓ characteristics, interests, and professional practices. • Discussion/Presentation: Students are required to discover innovative Web-based tools and resources for personal knowledge management, professional career development, and multi-cultural social interactions. How those tools can be applied will be presented to fellow students and instructors. • Web-based research and exercises: Students engage in collaborative research exercises to enhance their knowledge about concepts taught in classes and their applications to professional and general social contexts. Through these collaborative exercises, students can also enhance their self-learning, oral communication and interpersonal skills.
